

Privacy Statement

MannKind websites are designed to provide information and resources to those who use them. Health care is a personal matter, and MannKind maintains that level of privacy and confidentiality necessary to allow patients, health care professionals, caregivers and others to use our websites with confidence. Your trust is important to us.

The information provided on this site is designed to support, not replace, the relationship that exists between a patient and his/her existing physician.

Activity Logging.

Understanding how our websites are used helps us to better meet your needs. In order to gain that understanding, we may automatically collect information such as length of users’ visits to a particular site, which pages were viewed on a site, geographic location of groups of site visitors, etc. In order to understand these site experiences, we may collect IP addresses and related information, but this information will not be used to personally identify individual users.

In addition, we may automatically collect non-personal information through the use of “cookies”. Cookies are small files left on your computer’s hard drive by a website when you visit that site. They allow the website to “recognize” your computer when you return to the site, but do not provide personal information about you. Many sites use cookies. Some MannKind websites use cookies. Most web browsers include a feature that will allow you to disable cookies, so that they cannot be left on your computer. The “help” portion of your browser normally provides assistance with using this feature. Disabling cookies, however, will prevent you from enjoying many convenient services offered by some sites.

Personally Identifiable Information.

Our websites are designed so that you may generally browse them without providing any personally identifiable information. Some MannKind websites invite users to voluntarily supply personal information in exchange for additional services or resources. MannKind does not automatically collect personally identifiable information of this type on its websites, and will not use the information you voluntarily supply in order to gain additional information about you without your permission.

The personal information you provide to us will be used to supply you with information, services and research interaction associated with the MannKind product or program in which you indicated interest. Providing that information indicates your consent for MannKind to contact you about that product or program.

Your personal information may be shared with other organizations under two scenarios. First, business partners essential to the fulfillment of your request will use your information in order to carry out their services; for example, MannKind may contract with database managers or mailing houses to assist with the program in which you have indicated interest. Second, we would comply with a government request for personal information if compelled to release it by court order or similar action. Other than these two scenarios, we do not share your personally identifiable information with third parties.

Upon your written request, we will use reasonable efforts to remove your personally identifiable information from our then-current websites at any time. To make such a request, please send an email to compliance@mannkindcorp.com or write to us at our headquarters. Please note that your request that we delete your personally identifiable information does not ensure complete or comprehensive removal of such information. For example, your personally identifiable information may remain on archival or backup copies of our websites.
